

UNDERWRITING PROCEDURES PACKET

The attached information is required for all Access Sacramento community producers to read and adhere to before proceeding with any search for underwriting monies or before receiving payment (monies, goods or services) for production services when using any Access Sacramento equipment.

The packet includes:

Underwriting Agreement and Underwriting Proposal - must be completed, turned in to Executive Director, and approved before proceeding further.

Underwriter's Letter of Agreement - must be signed by the Certified Access User and each Underwriter prior to submission of programming for cablecast on Access Sacramento channels.

Underwriting Financial Report - must be filled out and turned in on a quarterly basis, whether or not you have received or spent money during the reporting period.

Underwriting Credits Guideline - Read and follow through as outlined. If you have questions, contact the Executive Director.

Underwriting procedures are intended to track any cash received by an individual or group, including any payment received for serving as a crew member during the use of publicly owned Access Sacramento equipment or facilities. This tracking is mandated by the City and the County of Sacramento. Additionally, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) periodically reviews the non-profit, non-commercial status of Access Sacramento. Be aware that any cash, goods and/or services you receive may need to be reported as income. The non-profit, tax-exempt status of Access Sacramento does not cover your revenue generating activities. You are an independent contractor and no relationship of employer-employee or principal-agent exists between you and Access Sacramento.

Any questions regarding the enclosed should be addressed to the Executive Director by calling 456-8600.

UNDERWRITING CREDITS

(from the Access Sacramento Operating Rules and Procedures)

8.0 Underwriting (revised 1996)

After receiving approval in advance from Access Sacramento, users are permitted to give aural and/or visual underwriting credit to a person or organization that has paid for, in whole or in part, the production, distribution or promotion of a program cablecast on a community use or public access channel managed by Access Sacramento, so long as the underwriting credit does not violate FCC rules or regulations, the terms of the Access Sacramento Operating Rules and Procedures (including Section 6.0, Programming Content Restrictions, above), and the following additional guidelines:

- 8.1 A credit to an individual underwriter shall not exceed ten (10) seconds in length and total underwriting credits may not exceed thirty (30) seconds in length during a single break for credits.
- 8.2 No address may be shown or listed.
- 8.3 The audio shall be a single voiceover announcement identifying the underwriter and the service they provide (if appropriate).
- 8.4 Underwriters may be given a credit at the open of every underwritten program and must be given a credit at the end of the program.
- 8.5 If the program is longer than one (1) hour and fifteen (15) minutes, underwriters may receive a credit at the open of the program, at each sixty-minute interval (or at a natural break as close to the hour as possible), and at the close.
- 8.6 If the program is longer than two (2) hours and fifteen (15) minutes, underwriters may receive a credit at the open of the program, at each sixty-minute interval (or at a natural break as close to the hour as possible), and at the close.
- 8.7 A fifth (5th) credit may be given in programs exceeding three (3) hours and fifteen (15) minutes in length, and so on.
- 8.8 A complete packet of information regarding underwriting and fundraising procedures, available at the Access Sacramento administrative office, must be obtained by interested individuals and an agreement must be signed with Access Sacramento before any underwriting or fundraising activities are permitted to occur.

Tips on Evaluating Underwriting Credits

Access Sacramento evaluates proposed underwriting credits by using guidelines established by the Federal Communications Commission to regulate such credits used by public broadcasting stations. Therefore, underwriting credits should be made for identification purposes only and should not promote the contributor's products, services or company.

When does a credit promote rather than identify? In general, underwriting credits that include information beyond that required to identify the underwriter run the risk of being impermissibly promotional. While this is ultimately a judgment call, five practices are not allowed because they cross the line between identification and promotion: comparative descriptions; qualitative descriptions; pricing information; calls to action; and inducements to buy, sell, rent or lease. Here's a summary and several examples of each.

1. COMPARATIVE DESCRIPTIONS

Donor acknowledgments that contain descriptive language comparing the underwriter's products or services with those of competitors are not permitted. Comparative descriptions usually include words that imply a comparison to others such as:

Best
Better
More
Superior

Examples of acknowledgments that include these comparative terms are:

"... Serving more cities than any other airline."
"...With more assets than any other bank."
"...Featuring the best products in town."

The relevant test is not whether each of these statements is true: a statement can be truthful and still be comparative. The issue is whether the statement compares the underwriter's products or services with its competitors. If it does, the statement is promotional and should not be included in the underwriting credits.

2. QUALITATIVE LANGUAGE

As a general rule, donor acknowledgments that contain qualitative descriptions of the underwriter's products or services are not permitted. Qualitative descriptions include words that describe the features, benefits, advantages, or other qualities offered by the underwriter's products or services. Examples of qualitative words are:

Fine
Excellent
Tasty

Examples of descriptions that include qualitative words are:

"Distributor of fine furniture." "Builder of homes of distinction." "Home-made taste in a frozen dessert." "With 20 convenient locations." "Maker of quality products."

As mentioned under "comparative descriptions," whether these statements are true makes no difference. If qualitative language is used to describe an underwriter's products or services, the acknowledgment probably serves to promote rather than identify the underwriter, and therefore would not be allowed.

3. PRICING INFORMATION

Announcements containing price information are not permitted. This includes any announcement of interest rate information or other indication of savings or value associated with the product. Examples of pricing information are:

"7.7% interest rate now available."
"Making computer power affordable at every desk."
"Office products at discount prices."

4. CALLS TO ACTION

Announcements that contain a "call to action" are not permitted. Most "calls to action" are addressed directly to the viewer and tell the viewer to take action. Examples of "calls to action" are:

"Ask about our IRA's."
'Stop by our showroom to see a model."
"Try product X next time you buy oil."
"Enjoy a night out at John's Restaurant."

5. INDUCEMENTS TO BUY, SELL, RENT, OR LEASE

Announcements containing any inducement to buy, sell, rent or lease are not permitted. Language or descriptions that give reasons for doing business with the underwriter should be suspected of serving promotional rather than identification purposes. Examples are:

"Six months' free service." "A bonus available this week." "Special gift for the first 50 visitors." "Now offering free checking."
"With 20 nearby stores to save you time and money."

In determining whether an underwriting credit promotes rather than identifies, you need to consider the overall effect of both audio and video. A common misconception about underwriting credits is that established corporate slogans are acceptable by definition. All slogans, even those that are part of a company's logo, must not contain comparative or qualitative descriptions of the underwriter's products or services, pricing information, calls to action, or inducements. In short, all slogans must be non-promotional.
