

ACCESS SACRAMENTO's 2008 Film Festival
"A Place Called Sacramento"

For the ninth year, Access Sacramento launches "A Place Called Sacramento" (PCS), a scriptwriting and short film production project for local writers and producers. PCS challenges local scriptwriters to write ten-minute scripts about the people, places, and events that make our community such a unique place to live. Plan to join in the fun.

Cast and Crew Call... Wednesday May 21 (6:00 PM - 8:30 PM)

Coloma Community Center Courtyard @ 4623 T Street, Sacramento, CA. 95819

Join with hundreds of interested cast and crewmembers to meet the selected screenwriters and hear their stories. Experience is appreciated but not necessary. You can help make a movie this summer! Production teams are formed and interested actors create a PCS "audition tape" used by all ten filmmakers. Join us and become part of the fun.

At the "Cast and Crew Call", ten scriptwriter/producers will be introduced to actors and production teams are then formed. Each team then works together during the summer months completing their ten minute masterpiece. Finally, after weeks of hard work and great fun, friends gather at the World Premiere to a packed house at the CREST Theatre on October 5, 2008.

To view the ten films completed for the 2007 PCS film festival, go to the web site www.accesssacramento.org. In the eight years of PCS, 79 short films have been created.

Access Sacramento is a nonprofit organization dedicated to using community media to build better communications between individuals and groups in Sacramento County. With our television studio, radio and television production equipment, media lab, mobile production truck, and other gear, we train and manage volunteers and share their work on cable radio and television channels 17 & 18.
